

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A goggle includes a body, the body having two integrated frames respectively extended around the lenses thereof and two lugs respectively outwardly extended from the frames for the mounting of a headband, each
5 frame each having a smoothly curved inner edge fitting the curvature of human face around the eyes and a stepped inner section, and two sealing members directly molded from a compound rubber on the body, each sealing member having two annular flanges respectively bonded to the inner and outer surfaces of the corresponding frame, the outer annular flange being bonded to the outer
10 surface of the stepped inner section of the corresponding frame and disposed in flush with an outer surface of the corresponding frame.